midterm mortality after valve-sparing aortic root replacement: a multiinstitutional study. Valve-sparing aortic root replacement (VSRR) for aortic root aneurysms was initially developed for children. However, data about outcomes after VSRR in adults are limited. This study aimed to identify predictors of midterm mortality after VSRR. Between January 1, 1997 and May 1, 2012, 420 patients (mean age = 40 ± 13 years) underwent VSRR at 9 institutions in the United States. Mean follow-up was 4.8 ± 4.2 years (median, 2.9 years). Hospital and midterm follow-up data were obtained from an institutional database. A total of 356 patients (86.2%) were followed. The mean preoperative aortic root diameter was 61.3 ± 10.9 mm. Early mortality occurred in 2 patients (0.5%), and major postoperative complications occurred in 59 patients (15.0%). Predictors of early mortality included age

A variety of studies have investigated the role of inherited thrombophilia in myocardial infarction (MI) risk. It is unclear whether the results are reproducible, considering the different study designs and the heterogeneity of the populations studied.

We performed a meta-analysis of 14 studies that investigated the association between prothrombotic gene variants and MI risk. For these analyses, we tested for publication bias and searched for differences in the associations between the individual prothrombotic gene variants and MI risk. We
